Reflections of the 78th Golden Globes Nominations

By Carli Rettig

This February 28th, the 78th Golden Globes Awards will premiere, reflecting on the memorable and artistic works of a substantial year for the entertainment industry. The nominations for the various categories in this year's awards show are the culmination of a socially aware and challenging year for Hollywood. Throughout this article, I would like to share my personal insight into some of the works that have been nominated this year. I will be focusing on the shows and films that are deemed suitable for those who are of high school age and older.

Netflix's The Queen's Gambit happened to be my personal favorite of the nominations this year. The show has been nominated for "Best Television Limited Series, Anthology Series or Motion Picture Made for Television." The show's lead, Anya Taylor-Joy, received a nomination for "Best Performance by an Actress in a Limited Series, Anthology Series or Motion Picture Made for Television." The Queen's Gambit is truly unlike anything I have watched before. It centers around a young woman and her path to becoming a successful chess player while showing her struggles with being adopted and substance abuse.

Anya Taylor-Joy has also been nominated for "Best Performance by an Actress in a Motion Picture - Musical or Comedy." She received the nomination in commemoration of her titular role as a classic Jane Austen character in the film adaptation, Emma. The aforementioned motion picture is a wonderful book-to-movie adaptation, and Anya Taylor-Joy's 'Emma' truly encapsulates the notably meddlesome character in the famed Jane Austen novel. Emma is a stunning display of the timeless scenery that can be seen in many picturesque period-piece films.

This year's Golden Globes nominations applauded the notable work of Lin Manuel Miranda's popular musical, Hamilton. Lin Manuel Miranda has received the Golden Globe nomination for "Best Performance by an Actor in a Motion Picture - Musical or Comedy," with Hamilton receiving a nomination for "Best Motion Picture - Musical or Comedy." Releasing on Disney+ this past summer, the Broadway production of Hamilton was adapted into a film with the original cast reprising their roles that highlight conceptual diversity and reflecting on the stories of American history.

The effortless comedic style of Schitt's Creek earned the show many Golden Globes nominations this year, including "Best Television Series - Musical or Comedy" as well as nods to the actresses and actors, Dan Levy, Eugene Levy, Catherine O'Hara, and Annie Murphy. Schitt's Creek is a wonderful depiction of wholesome comedy while also representing a well-written pansexual character. The whirlwind show, Killing Eve, earned Jodie Comer a nomination for "Best Performance by an Actress in a Television Series - Drama." Killing Eve explores the complex characters of a female assassin and the woman who is investigating her in a well-produced display of female-led entertainment. Both of the aforementioned television shows depict LGBTQ+ characters in a well-represented manner.

With all of these films and shows in mind, I highly encourage you to give them a try. I have personally viewed all of these myself and decided to extend my reflections in this article. As a disclaimer, the works I have written about are just my personal favorites of the various Golden Globes nominations this year, yet I still implore you to check them out. The entertainment industry is a nice distraction from the chaos in the current world, so I suggest that you utilize the enriching works of the 78th Golden Globes nominations.

Student Song Review

The Song "Fires"

By Hayden Flores

The song "Fires" by Jordan St. Cyr has really helped me through these times. Some of the lyrics are, "You walk me through fires, you pull me through flames. When you're in this with me, I won't be afraid." As the song says, with God there is no need to be afraid. It goes on to say, "And when the smoke billows higher, oh and higher and it feels like I can barely breathe." No matter what, when you need help and can't "breathe" remember you're not alone. "I walk through these fires cause you're walking with me."
